

México Republicano Statement

On the Occasion of the World Day Against Trafficking in Persons

Mexico City, July 30, 2025

On the occasion of the World Day Against Trafficking in Persons, the México Republicano Party expresses its unwavering commitment to the defense of human dignity, the protection of victims, and the total eradication of this heinous crime that wounds our communities and destroys innocent lives.

We recognize the tireless and exemplary work of activist Rosy Orozco, a national and international leader in the fight against human trafficking. Her moral leadership has inspired thousands not to remain indifferent to this contemporary tragedy. Thanks to her efforts, many victims have regained their freedom, their voice, and their future.

We also commend the recent International Summit Against Human Trafficking, organized by the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC) in Washington, D.C., which brought together conservative leaders from around the world to raise awareness, coordinate transnational efforts, and promote serious and effective public policies to address this global issue.

An official delegation from México Republicano had the honor of participating in this important forum, bringing the voice of the new Mexican right to a cause that knows no ideological boundaries. We highlight the valuable contributions of speakers such as Kristi Noem, Governor of South Dakota and defender of liberty, as well as Eduardo Verástegui, tireless pro-life activist and global advocate against child trafficking.

Our movement reiterates that fighting human trafficking is not optional — it is a moral duty that must unite us beyond partisan lines. At México Republicano, we are committed to promoting tougher legislation, effective justice, and comprehensive protection for victims from both Congress and local governments.

Now more than ever, we call upon civil society, churches, the business sector, and federal and state governments to join this fight with courage and determination.

Because every life matters.

Because every child, every woman, and every human being deserves to live in freedom.

A Mexico free from trafficking!

México Republicano stands firm!

Freedom. Greatness. Strength.

Sincerely
